Contractors Seek to Deliver Certainty to Project Owners

Last year, as the pandemic upended the construction industry, contractors hatched a plan to come together. Determined to keep jobsites open and deemed essential around the U.S., a group of contractors partnered on turnkey coronavirus prevention protocols for all companies to use.

This year's Top 400 Contractors revenue results don't immediately show how virus prevention methods changed productivity among firms. What the numbers do show is that securing construction's essential status helped contractors avoid devastating losses.

"Following the CDC guidelines was absolutely crucial to our survival last year. It really saved us because we weren't going to have a business without it," says Turner Construction Co. President and CEO Peter Davoren. As a result, he says, "We were able to continue to function all through COVID after a slippery slope in the second quarter of last year."

Despite the pandemic, aggregate 2020 revenue for the Top 400 reached $414.88 billion, 0.12% more than was reported by last year's list—another record year, albeit by a small margin.

Bechtel lost its long-held top spot on the Top 400 list to Turner after the firm's revenue declined in nearly all of its market sectors.

NUMBER 45

CATCHING RAYS

Burns & McDonnell (No. 45) began construction on a 50-MW solar farm in Troy, Ind. The project consists of about 150,000 solar panels covering 300 acres.

Moving forward after initial jobsite disruptions, the data shows that most Top 400 general contractors and construction management companies leaned on projects in their pipelines to keep 2020 revenue strong.

A majority of firms reported backlog abundance from a strong 2019. More than a few mid-size firms reported backlogs that can carry them as far as the second quarter of 2022. Larger firms report backlogs lasting well into 2023.

The median revenue for this year's Top 400-listed contractors jumped to $501.9 million in 2020 from the $492 million reported for 2019. Nearly half of the Top 50 firms increased revenue while upper middle-tier firms stayed strong. Revenue from mid-tier firms generally outpaced firms at the same ranks last year. Of the 150 firms ranked between numbers 150 and 300, 138 reported more revenue than that group had indicated a year ago.

Many firms indicate that multitiered worker shortages will be the biggest 2021 challenge, compounded by low vaccination rates—which can increase risk of outbreaks, slow productivity, increase lead times and decrease project certainty.

Shortages of raw building materials such as copper, lumber, iron pipe and steel are also of immediate concern. Suffering under long lead times, some projects are shelved until further notice, putting firms back into a pandemic pause.

"These issues are being caused by high demand in the busy construction market and reduced production due to COVID shutdowns at plants—potentially impacting schedule and cost commitments," says Mark Luegering, senior vice president and COO of Messer Construction Co.

When asked about customers' No. 1 request, Top 400 contractors overwhelmingly report that eliminating risks related to a project's costs and schedule led the list. Amid labor and materials shortages, some firms are addressing this by stepping up their preconstruction planning efforts.

"These preconstruction efforts are about more than estimating, and our building processes are about more than building safely with quality assurance," says Turner Burton, president at Hoar Construction.

"Owners are always looking for more certainty in a project, from schedule to quality to costs," Burton adds. "That's why we're focused on improving the entire development process." ■

GREEN PLAN Skanska is developing the Rosslyn-Ballston property as well as serving as construction manager.

Sustainable Addition

Office tower will occupy rare undeveloped space near D.C.

S skanska will break ground this fall on a nine-story office tower in Arlington, Va. The building will feature 191,000 sq ft of office space and 10,000 sq ft of retail space. The development also will provide an 8,000-sq-ft public plaza adjacent to Quincy Park. Skanska, which is developing the property in addition to serving as construction manager, acquired the site in late 2019. At the time, it was one of the few remaining undeveloped parcels in the Rosslyn-Ballston corridor near Washington, D.C. The project, which was designed by architectural firm CallisonRTKL, is scheduled for completion in 2023. The project is one of the first office buildings in the region to be awarded WELL pre-certification. Additionally, the project is targeting WiredScore and LEED Gold certifications. When completed, tenants will have access to a rooftop conference center equipped with a catering kitchen and a rooftop deck, private outdoor space on select floors, a ground-level fitness center and three levels of below-grade parking with electric car-charging stations. ■

Turner/Walsh V.A. Medical Center

A joint venture of Turner Construction and Walsh Construction has been awarded an $840-million contract to build a new medical center in Louisville, Ky., by the Dept. of Veterans Affairs and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Louisville District. The 970,000-sq-ft medical facility, which is set on a 34-acre site, will replace the Robley Rex V.A. Medical Center. In addition to the 104-bed center, the project includes two parking structures, a regional laundry facility and a 40,000-sq-ft central utility plant. The scope also includes a new roadway and sidewalks. It is scheduled to break ground this fall, with completion in 2025. The JV established a goal of awarding $95 million in contracts to small, local and veteran-owned businesses. According to the Army Corps of Engineers, the facility will “integrate modern patient-centered care concepts to provide the best possible care for veterans.” To address the needs of women veterans, the facility will also house a women’s health clinic.

DPR

Waller Place Mixed-Use Tower

DPR Construction is lined up to build the tallest tower in Texas. The 74-story Waller Place mixed-use tower in Austin, which is scheduled to break ground in December, will be 1,022 ft tall upon completion in April 2026. The project is being co-developed by Lincoln Property Co. and Kairos Residential. The design team is led by Kohn Pedersen Fox Associates and HKS. The mixed-use project will feature office, residential and hotel spaces, as well as above- and below-grade parking and plazas. The 3.25-acre site is located at the edge of the Rainey Street District and immediately adjacent to Waller Creek.

Fluor/Austin Bridge & Road I-35E Expansion

Construction is scheduled to begin this fall on phase 2 of the I-35 expansion, a four-year, $640-million design-build project in Dallas County, Texas. Located within a 6.3-mile corridor between I-635 and the Denton County line, the project calls for reconstruction of the existing six general purpose lanes, two reversible, tolled-managed lanes and frontage roads. In addition, the project team will add two general-purpose lanes with new auxiliary lanes at the entrance and exit ramps.

Richard E. Pierson Construction Co. Inc. Rumson-Sea Bright Bridge

Beset by structural and functional limitations, the 71-year-old, 661-ft-long movable double-leaf bascule bridge in Monmouth Co., N.J., is on track for replacement with a $107.5-million drawbridge now under construction. Along with providing a more reliable structure to serve one of the area's key coastal evacuation routes, the new bridge will have two eastbound lanes, one westbound lane, shoulders and sidewalks. Construction is scheduled to complete in spring 2025.

As part of a multi-phase program to upgrade the junction of two key Seattle traffic corridors, the $68-million project will extend SR 520's new transit/HOV system to create a dedicated, reversible transit connection with the I-5 express lanes, along with a reversible transit/carpool ramp at the I-5/Mercer Street interchange. Construction began this summer and is expected to be complete in late 2023.

Caltrans upgrade recrafts U.S. Route 101 in California

As part of an overall strategy to relieve congestion and expand mobility options in Santa Barbara County, Calif., Granite Construction is serving as construction manager for Caltrans' upgrade of a 10.8-mile segment of U.S. Route 101 between the cities of Santa Barbara and Carpinteria. The $410-million project, which began construction in 2020, will add a peak-period carpool lane to the freeway in each direction, reconstruct creek crossings to improve water flow, upgrade freeway access ramps and improve adjacent streets and intersections. In addition, Granite also has been awarded multiple general contractor assignments for work along the corridor, including roadway demolition, new retaining walls and refinements to the highway's curve geometry. The entire program is scheduled to be complete by 2028. ■

MIDDLESEX CORP Rochambeau Bridge

A 300-ton crane will soon begin placing steel for the $52.8-million Rochambeau Bridge rehabilitation project in Connecticut. Begun in June 2020, the 42-month upgrade of I-84's twin-span Housatonic River crossing is being carried out from work trestles and barges while also maintaining a 75-ft-wide navigation channel for boaters. The bridge has extra-wide shoulders, allowing for bi-directional traffic on one span as work is completed on the other one. As of Aug. 30, 36 of the 42 girders had been set, with the remaining six to be set in September directly over the marine channel.

Burns & McDonnellWisconsin Solar Farms

Alliant Energy has contracted with Burns & McDonnell to build 250 MW of solar projects in Wisconsin. Burns & McDonnell will provide engineering, procurement and construction for three Alliant projects: Bear Creek, North Rock and Wood County. The company also will design and build 10 miles of high-voltage overhead transmission lines to connect the solar facilities. Bear Creek and Wood County should be complete by 2022, with North Rock on track for 2023.

Wood PLCUS Park Service Energy Audit

Wood PLC is leading an audit to help the U.S. National Park Service determine whether it can reduce its energy costs and carbon footprint by switching to solar microgrid power at four remote locations in the Glen Canyon National Recreation Area in Arizona and Utah. Three of these areas run entirely on diesel generator power; the fourth runs on a photovoltaic system supplemented by diesel power.

Goodfellow Bros.Waikoloa Solar and Storage

Goodfellow Bros. is constructing the Waikoloa Solar and Storage Project on the Big Island of Hawaii. Consisting of a 30-MW solar photovoltaic array and a 120-MWh lithium-ion battery storage system, it will be among the first utility-scale solar farms for a Hawaii Island. Waikoloa is one of eight renewable energy projects that Hawaiian Electric Cos. selected in 2018 to bring the state closer to its goal of achieving 100% renewable energy by 2045. The project is expected to contribute 7.1% of the island's energy needs.

Mortenson repowers Oasis wind farm in Mojave

Work is underway by Mortenson to repower the 60-MW Oasis wind farm in Mojave, Calif., for renewable energy developer and operator Terra-Gen. After acquiring the plant in 2019, Terra-Gen brought in Mortenson as its construction partner to repower the facility, which first operated in 2004.

Mortenson will replace 60 1-MW turbines with 17 modern 3-MW turbines and will be responsible for access roads, foundations, underground collection, erection and updates to the existing substation. At peak construction, the project will employ an estimated 100 craftworkers.

Mortenson started working on the project in spring 2021. It is slated for completion in September 2021.

Mortenson also is building the Edwards & Sanborn solar and energy-storage project for Terra-Gen in Kern County, Calif. One of the world's largest standalone solar and energy-storage projects, the facility consists of 809 MW of solar and 2,297 MW-hours of energy storage. ■

MCDERMOTT FOCUSES ON HYDROGEN

McDermott International's CB&I Storage Solutions business completed the conceptual design for a 40,000-cubic-meter liquid hydrogen sphere storage tank, which would be one of the largest of its kind in the world. The design is part of a study for an unnamed natural gas producer awarded earlier this year. The design for the double-wall liquid hydrogen sphere is eight times larger than the hydrogen sphere CB&I is building for NASA, which will use the tank to fuel rockets for missions to Mars, and will be the largest cryosphere ever built at a NASA facility.

FOUR OF FIVE The Manuel project is one of the major capital projects BP expects to deliver in 2021.

Boosting Production

New facilities will improve Na Kika platform output in Gulf of Mexico

Over the summer, BP marked the safe start-up of the Manuel project in the U.S. Gulf of Mexico, the fourth of five major projects the energy company expects to deliver globally in 2021. The project, delivered by Subsea Integration Alliance, a partnership between Subsea 7 and OneSubsea Schlumberger, includes a new subsea production system for two new wells that are tied into the Na Kika platform, located about 140 miles off the coast of New Orleans. The wells are expected to boost gross platform production by an estimated 20,100 barrels of oil equivalent a day (boe/d). Manuel is located east of the Na Kika platform in 6,625 feet of water, and the two new wells were drilled to a depth of approximately 21,000 ft. “Our disciplined investment in Manuel is part of our target to add 900,000 boe/d of production from new projects by the end of 2021,” said Ewan Drummond, BP senior vice president of projects, production and operations, in a statement. Both BP and Shell hold a 50% working interest in the Manuel development. ■

Koch Modular Process Systems ReGen III Re-Refinery

ReGen III Oil Corp. plans to construct a new 5,600 bpd re-refining facility in Texas. Koch Modular Process Systems will work alongside Process Dynamics Inc. to provide the design, engineering and delivery of modular process systems to be installed within ReGen III’s new re-refinery. PCL Industrial Construction Ltd. is also a part of the project team. Koch is now moving through the full FEED phase of the project.

McDermott Trion Project

BHP Petróleo Operaciones de México, S. De R.L. De C.V., in partnership with Pemex, in May selected McDermott to provide front-end engineering design of a semi-submersible floating production unit for the Trion Project in the Gulf of Mexico, about 19 miles south of the U.S./Mexico border. The scope of the FEED contract includes engineering tasks related to the configuration, sizing and analysis of the production unit, including topsides, hull, risers and mooring.

McDermott Gulf Coast Growth Ventures

ExxonMobil and SABIC said in July their joint venture, Gulf Coast Growth Ventures, near Corpus Christi, Texas, reached mechanical completion of a monoethylene glycol unit and two polyethylene units. Project startup is expected to begin in the fourth quarter of 2021. The project, which includes a 1.8-million-metric-ton ethane steam cracker, is expected to be delivered ahead of schedule and under budget. Project construction was led by the Wood Group, McDermott & Turner Industries Group, Chiyoda & Kiewit and Mitsubishi Heavy Industries and Zachry Group.

S&B ENGINEERS AND CONSTRUCTORS CHEVRON PHILLIPS 1-HEXENE UNIT

Chevron Phillips Chemical broke ground in May on a 1-hexene unit in Old Ocean, Texas, near its Sweeny facility. S&B Engineers and Constructors was awarded the engineering and construction contract. Construction is expected to begin during the third quarter of 2021, with project startup in 2023. The project is expected to create 600 construction jobs at its peak. 1-hexene is central to manufacturing high-performance plastic products. Chevron Phillips Chemical operates the world’s largest on-purpose 1-hexene unit in Baytown, Texas.

Granite

Lake Ralph Hall Project

In May, Granite Construction won an award to build a 2.3-mile-long, 108-ft-tall earthen embankment dam, a component of the overall Lake Ralph Hall project near Dallas. The project, one of the state's biggest in the past 30 years, will provide a new source of water for an area in which population is projected to increase nearly fivefold over the next 50 years. Granite's $160-million contract involves building the Leon Hulse dam as well as a cast-in-place concrete spillway, with a 120-ft-wide overflow section, along with other associated infrastructure.

 Winnipeg Sewage Plant

In July, Aecon Group and joint-venture partner Oscar Renda Contracting of Canada received the project award for a $272-million design-build sewage treatment plant upgrade in Winnipeg, Manitoba. The construction team will design and build a new headworks facility that will include a raw sewage pump station, a micro-tunnel extension of existing interceptor sewers, a grit removal system and other related infrastructure. The project is the first of three planned to upgrade the North End Sewage Treatment Plant.

Pace Picks Up in Salt Lake

Replacement of city's largest wastewater treatment plant begins

Sundt and PCL are constructing a $700-million water reclamation facility to replace an aging 33-million-gallon-a-day wastewater treatment plant in northern Salt Lake City, Utah. The new 48 mgd treatment facility will add a biological nutrient removal project to reduce phosphorus in the wastewater to comply with water quality requirements. According to the Salt Lake Dept. of Public Utilities, the public works project is one of the largest in the city's history, and it will be designed with sustainability in mind. The project's goal is to use at least 25% recycled materials. The project team is also pursuing an Envision Platinum certification for the facility and LEED Gold certification for the administration building. Since the groundbreaking at the end of 2019, the project team installed 43,000 wick drains at a depth of approximately 125 ft below the surface, and then hauled approximately 1.5 lb of soil to the site to compact the existing, poor-quality soil in lieu of installing driven steel piles. The team recently began construction, and the pace is expected to pick up mid-to-late 2022, with a completion date targeted for 2024. ■

BIG CREEK WATER EXPANSION UNDERWAY
 ARCHER WESTERN CONSTRUCTION, BROWN AND CALDWELL

A major upgrade and expansion of the Big Creek Water Reclamation Facility in Roswell, Ga., is on track to reach completion in 2024. Archer Western Construction and joint venture partner Brown and Caldwell are spearheading the progressive design-build project. Based on the Metropolitan Water District of Georgia's forecasts of population and economic growth, the facility will provide additional capacity to meet wastewater demands in Fulton County. The progressive design-build project will expand the facility to 32 million gallons a day from 24, install new membrane technology and odor control systems, and replace outdated equipment and buildings.

DPR: FACEBOOK DATA CENTER

Construction has begun on an $800-million data center for Facebook on a 390-acre site in Mesa, Ariz. The 960,000-sq-ft project is Facebook's first data center in Arizona. Redwood City, Calif.-based DPR Construction is leading the design-build team. From design and construction forward, the Mesa facility will be among the most advanced energy- and water-efficient data centers in the world, according to Facebook. The facility will use solar power, supplied by Tempe, Ariz.-based utility Salt River Project.

An existing building in Dartmouth, Mass., to be used for vaccines

Site work is underway for a vaccine manufacturing facility in a Dartmouth, Mass., business park, with plans for developing new vaccines for COVID-19 and other infectious diseases.

Tonix Pharmaceuticals of Chatham, N.J., is planning a 45,000-sq-ft clinical-scale manufacturing facility to be constructed as an existing building renovation in the New Bedford Business Park in Dartmouth. The facility is expected to be operational in the first half of 2022. The clinical-stage biopharmaceutical company declined to reveal the cost of the project.

Dean Poillucci, New England regional business unit director for Woburn, Mass.-based IPS Engineering, architect and engineer of record for the project, says Cardinal Group crews are performing slab cutting and removal to accommodate underground utility services and preparing fittings for the new 4,000-sq-ft Butler building prefabricated warehouse-type structure that they will add to one corner of the existing estimated 1970s-era structure. Crews also will modify the facade and make interior structural improvements or additions to support the equipment, he says.

The Cardinal Group's New England construction division is taking an integrated project delivery approach "to match the technical expertise and experience required to deliver the project with the quickest delivery schedule possible," IPS said. It noted "the project is unique, as Tonix is a virtual company and this project is their first facility of this type." ■

Walbridge

Nikola Truck Manufacturing

Detroit-based Walbridge has substantially completed construction of the first phase of Nikola Motors' 270,000-sq-ft manufacturing facility in Coolidge, Ariz. Construction began on the $600-million facility in July 2020. Nikola's trucks are powered by hydrogen and the company plans to build out hydrogen stations between central Arizona and Los Angeles.

Va. Data Centers Planned Power Line Concerns Raised

A $300-million data center complex is being developed in Gainesville, Va., for CTP-1 LLC, which is registered through Corporation Services Company, a company data center organizations use to mask their involvement in projects. The project will involve four two-story data centers, ranging from 114,330 sq ft to 132,750 sq ft. The Prince William Board of County Supervisors approved permits for the center in June. Residents are concerned the center will require an overhead transmission line. The applicant says it will not build the center if the project needs such a line. The project's civil engineer is JCL Consulting.

Bright Green Corp. Cannabis Research Facility

Bright Green Corp. is planning to build a cannabis manufacturing and research facility in Grants, N.M., it announced in May. The facility will produce cannabis and other herbs, and contain storage, packaging and medical research space. The first structure will be 600,000 sq ft on a 20-acre plot, to be completed in nine months. The second and third buildings will be erected on separate 50-acre plots and take 18 months to build. The project is valued at $300 million.
